POLITICAL.

The Ohio Republican State Convention nominated J. B. Foraker, of Cincinnati, for Governor. For Lieutenant-Governor, William G. Rose; Supreme Judge (long term), W. H. Upson; Supreme Judge (vacancy and long term), Jno. H. Doyle. Both by acclamation. The platform is as follows:

That the Republican party believe now, as in the past, in the maintenance of a tariff system which will provide a revenue for the government, and at the same time will protect American producers and American labor; that it is opposed to the Democratic doctrine of "a tariff for revenue only," because such a doctrine, if enforced, would of necessity compel American workmen to accept the unremunerative wages which are paid their foreign rivals. It looks with alarm upon the purpose already avowed by the Democratic leaders that the next Congress will revise the tariff by further reducing the duties on imports, which, if executed, will unsettle the business of the country, and will produce great injury to the mechanics, producers, and artisans of the land.

That the wool tariff of 1867 should be restored at the first possible opportunity; favors a National Bureau of Labor Statistics; favors submitting the constitutional amendment relative to the liquor tariff to the people, and commends the administration of President Arthur.

The Iowa Democratic State convention, Judge Kinne for Governor with the following State ticket:

Lieutenant-Governor, Justin C. Clark; for Supreme Court Judge, Walter I. Hays, and for Superintendent of Public Instruction, Edgar B. Farr.

The platform, after the usual reaffirmation of the principles of the Democratic party denounces the abuse in the civil service, both national and State, by the Republican party; favors the extension of the civil service laws to every department of the Government; arraigns the last Congress for its extravagance and demands economy; endorses a tariff for revenue only, and a gradual reduction of protective duties; denounces the tariff legislation of the last Congress as "the result of corrupt and disgraceful intrigues and shameless attempts to perpetuate existing evils under pretense of tariff reform;" opposes constitutional prohibition, and, in the interests of practical temperance, favors a well regulated license law with the penalty of forfeiture of the license for its violation; affirms the right of legislative regulation of railways, but holds that the power should be so exercised as to promote friendship between the railways and the people; demands that the Government protect its citizens from imprisonment by any foreign government without charge or right of trial, and cordially sympathizes with the oppressed of all nations struggling for their constitutional rights and liberties.

THE HEATED TERM.

What to do in Case of Sunstroke—The Children.

The report of the Sanitary Committee of the New York Board of Health upon sunstroke as approved and published by the board was as follows:

Sunstroke is caused by excessive heat and especially if the weather is "muggy." It is more apt to occur on the second, third or fourth day of a heated term than later. It is said not to be caused by drinking, close sleeping rooms, scurvy, abuse of stimulants predispose to it. It is more apt to attack those working in the sun, and especially between the hours of 11 o'clock in the morning and 4 in the afternoon. On hot days wear thin clothing. Have as cool sleeping rooms as possible. Avoid loss of sleep and all unnecessary fatigue. If working indoors and where there is artificial heat—laundries, etc.—see that the room is well vantilated. If a feeling of fatigue, dizziness, headache, or exhaustion occurs, cease work immediately, lie down in a shady and cool place, apply cold cloths to and pour cold water over head and neck. If anyone is overcome by the heat send immediately for the nearest good physician. While waiting for the physician, give the person cool drinks of water or cold black tea, or cold coffee, if able to swallow. If the skin is hot and dry, sponge with or pour cold water over the body and limbs, and apply to the head pounded ice wrapped in a towel or other cloth. If there is no ice at hand, keep a cold cloth on the head and pour cold water on it as well as on the body. If the person is pale, very faint and pulse feeble, let him inhale ammonia for a few seconds or give him a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in two tablespoonfuls of water with a little sugar.

The New York Board of Health again issue their rules for the care of young children. They are as follows:

If an infant is thirsty, give it pure water, or barley water; no sugar. On the hottest days a few drops of whisky may be added to either water or food; the whisky not to exceed a teaspoonful in twenty-four hours. In relation to the feeding of infants, boil a teaspoonful of powdered barley (ground in coffee grinder) and one-half pint of water, with a little salt, for fifteen minutes, strain, then mix it with half as much boiled milk, add a lump of white sugar, size of a walnut, and give it lukewarm from a nursing bottle; keep bottle and mouthpiece in a bowl of water when not in use, to which a little soda may be added. For infants five or six months old give half barley water and half boiled milk with salt and a lump of sugar. For older infants give more milk than barley water.

Summer complaints come from overfeeding and not foul air. Keep doors and windows open. Wash your well children with cool water twice a day, or oftener in the hot season. Never neglect looseness of the bowels in an infant; consult the family or dispensary physician at once and he will give you rules about what it should take and how it should be nursed. Keep your rooms as cool as possible, have them well ventilated and do not allow any bad smell to come from sinks, privies, garbage boxes or gutters about the house where you live. Where an infant is cross and irritable in hot weather, a trip on the water will do it a great deal of good and may prevent cholera infantum.

New Postage Rates.

On and after October 1, 1883, letter postage will be uniform at two cents for letters to any part of the United States. On and after July 1, 1883, money orders for $5 and under may be obtained for three cents. The order will be payable to bearer, and will be good for three months from date of issue; after that time the holder can get par value only by applying to the department at Washington. On the same date the rate of money orders on all sums will be changed, and not exceeding $10 be procurable for eight cents, and from that to $100, the rate increasing up to 45 cents.

INTERESTING TO FARMERS.

IMPORTANT PATENT DECISION.

The Barbed Wire Fence Controversy Decided Against the Monopoly.

Judge Treat, in the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis, Mo., has rendered a decision of great importance to nearly every part of the United States, settling the great barbed wire fence controversy. The Court holds that the patents issued to Kelly & Glidden are void, and therefore refused to grant the preliminary injunction asked for by the Washburn & Moen Manufacturing Company and Isaac L. Ellwood. The Washburn Company likewise sought an injunction against Gustav Griesche and Henry Fuchs relative to the manufacture of patent machines for barbed wire. This injunction was refused on the ground that there was no infringement.

The earliest barbed wire patent was issued in 1867 to one Hunt, since which time the issues and reissues have been almost innumerable. All of these, or at least all of them that possessed practical business features, have been from time to time acquired by the Washburn & Moen Manufacturing Company of Worcester, Mass., and Isaac L. Ellwood, of De Kalb, Ill., the plaintiffs in the cases referred to. Of all the numerous patents the only practical ones are those known as the Kelly & Glidden patents, the original issue of which has been claimed by the defendants in the suits, enlarged and amplified out of all knowledge by subsequent reissues. It is precisely here that the controversy takes place and where the battle has been fought out. If the issues are declared to be within the meaning and intention of the original patents, or if they are, in other words, valid, the defendants here will have been guilty of infringement. If otherwise, and the courts should declare the reissue vitally at variance with the original patents and invalid, the business of manufacturing barbed wire will be thrown open without restriction.

About two years ago, by a decision of the United States Court in Chicago, the Washburn & Moen Company was given the sole control of all barbed wire fencing made in the United States under a reissue of the Glidden patent, which included every kind of sharp-pointed metal or wire fence for the purpose of inflicting wounds upon animals and preventing them passing the line of a fence. By this decision the Washburn & Moen Company, who are assignees of Glidden's patent, acquired what is known among dealers in barbed wire fences as the "broad claim"—a complete monopoly of barbed wire fences. Licenses were then granted to manufacture and to vend the fences under condition that they would pay a royalty on all wire sold and would not sell lower than a fixed price. Thus the company and their licenses, having a monopoly, were enabled to fix prices at figures which yielded them princely revenues, the royalties alone amounting to between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 a year.

Subsequent to the decisions in Chicago in the Haish and similar cases the Supreme Court of the United States rendered two decisions which appeared to entirely overturn the basis on which the Chicago case rested. These decisions were on entirely different subjects, but went to the principle of the right to embody in a reissue of a patent matter not expressly claimed in the original.

This set the defendant in the present cases on inquiry, and the result was the establishment, both in St. Louis and in Iowa, of factories for the production of barbed wire. Suit was instituted, first against the Iowa defendants, and an injunction asked for to restrain them from further operations. These cases were argued last winter at Keokuk, Ia., before Circuit Judge McCrary and District Judge Love. The decision was reserved. Subsequently eight suits were brought against the St. Louis defendants—namely, three against Fuchs, two against Gates, and one against Griesche. These are the cases just decided. The subordinate question of the validity of the patents on the machines is decided against the great monopoly. The effect of this decision is to release all restrictions on the manufacture of barbed wire, and save millions of dollars annually to the farmers and ranchmen of the country that has heretofore been paid in the shape of royalty.

There were, according to the estimates of the best qualified judges, nearly 80,000 tons of barbed wire manufactured in the United States in 1882, or a total length of about 500,000 miles of wire. Upon this the firms claiming under their patents the exclusive right to manufacture barbed wire made within the year in royalties from their licenses and from extra profits in their own business between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

The Bridge Verdict.

The Coroner's jury in the case of the Brooklyn Bridge disaster reported their verdict as follows:

We find that George Smith and eleven others came to their death on the Brooklyn Bridge, May 30, 1883, through suffocation and being trampled upon. In view of the above fact we find that the trustees and officers were reprehensible in not having the bridge and its approaches properly policed, and particularly at the steps. Had this important matter received the careful attention of the managers of the bridge to which it was entitled the vast throng upon the structure would have been kept moving and the panic resulting in the death of twelve persons averted.

We find that the construction of the footway and steps is not of sufficient capacity for the accommodation of the foot passengers. The trustees should not pass this disaster over as a special dispensation and not likely to be repeated, but give serious attention to the problem of making the promenade absolutely safe.

IT WAS AT the close of the wedding breakfast. One of the guests arose, and, glass in hand, said: "I drink to the health of the bridegroom. May he see many days like this." The intention was good, but the bride looked up as if something had displeased her.

THE PLANET JUPITER.

Out with the Telescope and have a Look at it.

In these fine evenings of June the amateur astronomer should not neglect the opportunity, which will soon be gone, of studying the only conspicuous planet now visible in the evening sky, the giant Jupiter. Jupiter is now getting so low in the west, and so near the sun, that his image in the telescope is apt to be a little indistinct, but with a good glass, that will bear a magnifying power of 200 or 300 diameters, Jupiter is still a splendid phenomenon. His rosy belts and equatorial clouds and the constantly changing aspect of his satellite system never cease to be interesting, and there has seldom been a time when a glance at them once is sure to wish to see them again, as often as he can. One of the great charms of a telescope view of Jupiter is the visible motion of the planet and his moons. In a single evening one can see the huge globe roll half way over on its axis, the time of a whole rotation being only ten hours, and can witness the passage of the round black shadow of one of the moons across the face of the planet, or the disappearance of another moon as it goes behind the planet or is eclipsed in the great cone of shadow which Jupiter throws far away into space behind him. It is difficult for one not accustomed to astronomical observations to comprehend the fact that these little shining globes which he sees moving so silently and smoothly in their orbits are actually worlds in size, and that they are removed hundreds of thousands of miles from the great planet around which they circle. If, as most astronomers believe, Jupiter has not cooled down into a habitable globe, he is, in some respects, all the more interesting to us on that account; for if he were an inhabited globe, no telescope man can make would be able to reveal his inhabitants or their works to us, and the very fact that he was in such a condition as to support inhabitants would preclude the possibility of any physical changes which could be seen at the distance of four or five hundred million miles. But, on the other hand, if, as is believed, Jupiter is yet in a very early stage of world growth, then the inhabitants of this earth can continue to watch with their telescopes, as they have been doing for the last 200 years, the changes of appearance which he undergoes. In other words, they can behold part of the geological development of a distant world, and, if the human race could exist long enough and could hand down its records unbroken from age to age, it might at last have a complete history, based on actual observations, of the growth of Jupiter from a globe of gaseous or fluid matter to a solid and habitable world like our own.

Never Resumed.

There resides in Sandwich, says the New Bedford Standard, a man who wears a crooked nose, caused by a personal encounter with a female rebel during the late war. He was in Sheridan's cavalry, and during one of that General's famous raids was with a squad of men on a foraging expedition and visited a fine mansion. The house was locked, but a young lady of some seventeen or eighteen years made her appearance, to whom our hero made known his errand and assured her that if she unlocked the doors peaceably he would see that the property was not unnecessarily damaged and a reasonable amount of provision should be left for her family. She replied that that house belonged to her family and that no Yankee troopers could enter. He attempted to pass her, when she dealt him a terrible blow with her fist square on the nose, sending him down the steps, and that useful organ has never resumed its normal symmetry. The house was then entered by force.

A CHAPTER ON ADVERTISING.

What the Leading Business Houses of the Metropolis Have to Say.

A newspaper man has been interviewing some of the leading business houses of New York city who are large advertisers, and they make the following clear and plain statements:

"We believe in printer's ink. Advertise in the newspapers largely and well, and returns are sure. The stronger the advertising, the larger the returns."

"Without the aid of advertising, I could have done nothing in my enterprises. I have the most complete faith in printer's ink. Advertising is the Royal road to business."

"We have tried almost every sort of medium in advertising, and long ago became convinced that the results were largely in favor of the fresh and varied columns of the newspaper."

"An experience of many years has demonstrated to us the great value and benefit derived from carefully prepared and properly displayed advertisements in well established, influential newspapers."

"Money may be thrown away in advertisements as easily as in any other way. Success depends upon the selection of PRO

Harrison.

Memorial Day was observed in Harrison by planting flags and placing floral decorations at the graves of deceased soldiers in the various cemeteries. This service was performed under the auspices of Harry Rust Post G. A. R. of Norway, the officers of which furnished the ex-soldiers of Harrison with flags to carry out the objects of the occasion in a fitting manner. To that organization the thanks of all friends of our deceased comrades are due for this token of liberal regard. Capt. Granville Fernald had general supervision of the services in town, and had personal direction at the old F. B. church cemetery and Bolster's Mills. Able assistance was rendered in other cemeteries by comrades Howard M. Thompson, John E. Woodsum, and others. At the village a public meeting was held in the Cong. Church after decoration service, at which prayer was offered by Dea. A. P. Whitney, and appropriate addresses were made by Hon. C. A. Chaplin and Dea. Whitney. Six graves were decorated in the village cemetery. At old F. B. cemetery six graves were decorated with flags and floral offerings. Quite a number assembled to participate. Misses Isa Chenneviere and Nellie Smithson read appropriate poetical selections. At Bolster's Mills the teacher, Miss Emma Proctor, and her pupils were found assembled at the school house, and marched in procession to the cemetery, where eight graves were decorated with flags and beautiful bouquets. At the entrance to the cemetery, a beautiful, large silken banner was floating, crowned by a splendid floral wreath. This was loaned by Miss E. Fernald and erected by her order. At the close of the ceremony, the company assembled in the space near the gate and Misses Geneva Dorman, Virgie Weston, Mabel Dorman and Gertie Haskell each read beautiful memorial poems, after which all joined in singing America with a melodeon accompaniment, played by Miss Virgie Weston.—News.

C. F. Ricker is having a pleasure of Boston, 20 ft. long and 6 feet beam. The boiler and engine is from the shop of Wilkinson & Co., Boston. Mr. Ricker will adjust the engine after its arrival here. It is to go into Long Lake and is for select pleasure excursions over all the Sebago waters.

A new street is about to be laid out in the village over land purchased of Mrs. Mary Hamlin by Reuben Hobbs. This will open up a number of very fine building lots. Mr. Hobbs intends to improve one for building a house, and one or two other lots are engaged for building on the coming season it is reported.

Mr. William H. Briggs, of the late firm of Briggs Bros., Confectioners, Portland, has bought the farm known as the Dea. Walker place, for several years past the residence of Granville Fernald, and is repairing and repainting to some extent. Mr. B.s' family will remove from Portland the first of July and occupy their new home. Mr. Fernald's family will not remove from town.

The ceiling in the vestibule of Hon. Philander Tolman's mansion fell the other day and the room will have to be re-plastered. Some other rooms will also need repairing. Poor hair in the mortar is supposed to be the cause of the defective plastering. These rooms were handsomely frescoed by J. Mead & Son a few years ago.

Nearly 100 elm, maple and other ornamental trees were planted in the village this spring and are looking well.

A party of North Bridgton students excursioned on foot to Brunswick last week to attend "commencment," returning in the same manner. Among them was Fairfield Whitney, son of E. K. Whitney.

To Mrs. M. J. Illsley and Miss Annie Illsley, teachers of the village school, Miss Lucy Dorman of the Cummings district and Miss Emma Proctor, Bolster's Mills, with the scholars of each district, many thanks are due from the friends of deceased soldiers for the interest they each and all manifested, and for important services in preparing abundance of beautiful bouquets and wreaths for decoration services on Memorial Day.

NORTH NEWRY.

Mrs. Maria Sargent, an old lady 84 years old, fell down through (where there had been a chimney taken down) from the attic floor to the floor below, a distance of 18 feet, breaking one leg and badly bruised and injured her internally. Owing to her great age she is not expected to recover.

Grass never looked better for this season of the year. Crops of all kinds are looking finely with the prospect of a good harvest. MOSES.

Millard Emmons cut his foot quite badly last Saturday, while at work cutting fence staff. He was nearly half a mile away from home and no one with him and he had a hard time to reach home. He corded his leg before leaving the woods. You could track him as well as you could a butchered hog. He fainted as soon as he got into the house. Fortunately for him a physician was passing at the time and called in and dressed the wound. It is now doing nicely.

We learn that James Crockett of Norway has put into E. O. K. Waterhouse's pasture in this town, a nice Dutch bull. Greenwood folks will do well to patronize him, as he is worth going a long way to see.

I see by your paper that Wm. C. Hobbs of Norway, had quite a gathering at his house, consisting of his Sabbath school class. I dare say they had a nice treat.

Mrs. Amelia Richardson, a lady 88 years old, is quite smart for one of her age. She walked from her home to the town farm and back one day last week, a distance of nearly 3 miles.

Frank Martin who has been at work for Eld. Benson at North Paris, is obliged to return home on account of ill health.

Eld. Benson is to preach here once a month this season.

Miss Morton of Norway, is teaching the school at the city. The scholars are well pleased and the Supervisor speaks very highly of her as a teacher and governor.

Little Bertha Emmons, the 6 years old daughter of Israel Emmons, is an uncommonly smart scholar for her age.

Dennis Herrick was badly hurt while plowing by the oxen getting frightened and running over him.

AVON.

South Waterford.

Mrs. J. C. Pike, accompanied by Mrs. Alvin Pike of Sweden, was starting with their team to visit her daughter at No. Bridgton, this morning (Tuesday) a little before 9 o'clock, when, as soon as they were fairly started in the road the horse began to run, evidently frightened at something, and as they were at the top of a long hill he soon became unmanageable and having run forty or fifty rods threw both ladies out into the ditch. The fall was witnessed by a near neighbor, Mr. Jonathan Howe, and the alarm given. Mrs. Howe and the hired man, Mr. York, were soon at the place of disaster to witness a sad plight. Both women were apparently dead, but with wonderful courage Mrs. H. obtained water from the ditch, filled by yesterday's shower, and washed the blood from Mrs. J. C. Pike's face and soon had her upon her feet. Presently Mr. Howe came with another team and conveyed them both back to their home, and at once went for Dr. Wilson of this town. Fortunately Dr. Bray of Bridgton came along and was called in and took charge and dressed the wounds, upon the head of Mrs. J. C. Pike sewing up a large skin gash, and found no bones were broken in either, but Mrs. Alvin Pike was found to be badly injured in the chest so as to be unable to lie down. Mrs. J. C. is over threescore and ten or so, at least, and both he and Dr. Bray were busy for hours doing all in their power to relieve the sufferers. Bray's fears are grave, and says he considers the chances more than even against both of the ladies. Mrs. J. C. is a lady between 50 and 60 years of age, and quite heavy, while the other is considerably younger and lighter. They are among the best and most respected citizens of their respective towns Great anxiety is felt on the part of all for them. The Dr. says that the elder lady's case will be very critical if she lives for the next 48 hours. We learn that Mr. Alvin Pike will remove his wife to her home to-day.

Cobb & Hapgood have sold their grist mill to Mr. Daniel Lebroke of this town. The consideration is not made known to the public as yet. Mr. L. will take possession soon.

A bay horse, harness and rubber coat was stolen from Benj. Tucker's stable on Tuesday night.

C. W. Partridge with a small force of help is doing some extra good jobs on the highway. He is a highway surveyor, Mr. Editor, of which it is no "unusual sight" to see him taking the hardest place among his men, and instead of "large drops of sweat standing on his brow," it is pouring out all over him.

James Smith has been shingling his shoe shop and stable at the Lake.

BOLSTERS MILLS.

Freeman H. Pike and wife celebrated the eighth anniversary of their marriage by taking a trip to Boston and spending a few days.

Miss Lizzie M. Green, one of the oldest school teachers in this vicinity, has given up teaching and has engaged in less public duties. Porter.

Last week we had some quite hot weather. Tuesday the 5th inst., the thermometer went up to 90 in the shade. The hay crop was never more promising, and vegetation in general is in a fine growing condition.

We see by the ADVERTISER of last week that Bro. Sanborn and wife have gone to N. H. We hope their trip will be a pleasant one in all respects, and that the Editor will return to his editorial chair fresh and vigorous, brimful of news. We, too, are breathing the pure, bracing mountain air of the old "Granite State," which is truly refreshing. During our absence of a few years there has been many changes, yet the good people have not forgotten their true hospitality.

We were very sorry to find our friend, W. F. Parsons, of Conway, in very poor health. He has a delightful situation and is surrounded by many home comforts. Poor health seems to be his only drawback. We heartily wish some good angel with healing on its wing, would hover around him and that he might be fully restored to his usual strength.

Arriving at Conway Center we were very kindly entertained by Morton Bros. and their families. We find them selling goods of the best quality at very low prices. Business in general in this part of the country is thriving and prosperous. We are informed there are 17 stores in the town of Conway, each having their share of the trade.

We noticed Judge Eastman passing along the street, and although he is 85 years of age, his step is firm, and he is as erect as a young man of 20 years.

We spent a day with Mrs. Dorcas F. Morton, widow of the late William Morton. She is 81 years old, but is in good health and retains her faculties to a remarkable degree, doing her work as promptly as a young housekeeper.

A few words to Bro. Drake then we will close. Sorry you could not go fishing, but earnestly hope you will be able to hoe your "taters." Keep the fighting man in the back shop, and give him plenty of employment—idleness leads to vice.

We have found the "intelligent fishermen you advertised for last week. F. W. Morton, C. F. Morton and Sam'l Hatch of Conway, also Mr. A. Morton of Boston, went on a fishing excursion a few days ago to Albany, N. H., a distance of 15 miles. They were gone two days, fished in Swift river, and caught five hundred of the "speckled beauties," the largest of them weighing one-half pound each, and not one of them measuring less than five inches by a carpenter's rule. We will vouch for these facts, as not one of these honorable gentlemen would tell a "crooked" fish story.

OXFORD.

W. F. Hutchinson has seventeen men to work on Maguire's Island. He has been put back in operations on his hotel by the lack of material.

Ed. Hall, of Raymond Center, had some doubts whether a circular saw in Bartlett's Mills of Greenville, was in motion or not. He put his hand on to it carelessly and sawed off three of his fingers and part of his hand.

G. H. Parrott has just put in a lot of fine groceries which he offers at very favorable prices.

The boys who came back from Rangeley say that the heavy rains have raised the lakes so as to interfere seriously with the fishing.

On top of Allen hill is one of the finest places for a summer hotel in the State, a mineral spring of the purest water, and scenery which cannot be surpassed.

Saturday, some of the "boys" set Benj. Flood's clothes, which were covered with oil and paint, a fire. Eye witnesses say Mr. Flood got up and skinned out of those burning clothes with a suddenness which has no parallel in history.

We are sorry to see that a part of the trees that were set out in the school house yard are dead.

Leander Wardwell has certainly some of the finest livery teams in this village. LITTLE DAISY.

One of the locomotives of the G. T. R. was very tastily draped last week in remembrance of engineer Kavanough and fireman Fowler, killed in the Stratford Hollow accident.

A box containing 12 one quart bottles of Medford rum, was seized at the express office by Deputy Sheriff Chadborn last Saturday.

H. K. Pratt of East Oxford, is putting an extension of 24 feet on to his barn, besides making other improvements.

The farmers have got the greater part of their planting done and crops are growing very fast, especially those planted on high ground. The potato bug has already taken his stand, gazing with longing eyes for the first appearance of the potato top, and that bird of great musical genius, namely, the crow has already commenced his depredations in the corn field.

MASON.

Rain and accidents are still the order of the day. A few days ago, Sumner Grover of West Bethel, while attempting to shoot a hawk accidentally discharged his gun which was pointed towards his toe. The result was the toe had to be taken off. Last Monday evening, R. K. Morrell while at work leeching ashes, was badly scalded about the head and neck.

Last Sabbath being Childrens' Day, appropriate exercises were held in the M. E. Church. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Budden, preached a very interesting sermon to the children in the morning, and in the afternoon there were exercises by the children, consisting of recitations and singing. The house was well decorated with plants and flowers furnished by the friends of the school.

OTISFIELD.

The school on Scribner Hill commenced Monday, June 4th.

We hear that Miss J. Arvesta Andrews, who has been in Boston a number of weeks past for her health is improving and will soon be able to return home. Her many friends will be glad to welcome her back.

We were glad to welcome Miss Ella Lovewell back to her old school on the Gore again this spring, but very sorry that she was obliged to leave so soon on account of sickness in her family. The school commenced again Monday, June 4th, Miss Mertie Starbird of Norway, teacher, and we doubt not that it will be a successful term.

The Winship Bros. of East Otisfield, are enterprising farmers. They have quite a large shop in connection with their farm, where they have all the carriage repairing, etc., that they can attend to when not engaged on their farm.

Naples.

Henry Lamb met with a severe accident, while at work in his stave mill last Saturday. A stave caught on the back side of the saw and was thrown with great violence, striking him endwise in the forehead. He was stunned by the blow, but soon recovered consciousness. Physicians were called and the wound dressed. It was found on examination that besides a large scalp wound the outer crust of the skull was broken and a small piece gone. Though severe it is hoped the wound is not dangerous.

At an adjourned meeting of the Parish Society held at the school house June 11th, the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions to erect a meeting house at this village, reported subscriptions amounting to $400.00. The society chose E. L. Tebbets, E. E. Rand and I. C. Jordan as a building committee, with instructions to proceed to erect said building. Contributions from any one from the widow's mite upward will be thankfully received.

MR. EDITOR.—"T." the correspondent for the Lewiston Journal noticing the error in item locating Harry Rust Post G. A. R. at South Paris, sent a correction to that paper but it has not been inserted. While "T." thinks that such an organization as Harry Rust Post G. A. R. is an honor to any village yet he would not appropriate that honor to his own village.

So. Paris, June 13th, 1883.

Decoration Day.

What mean these men by marching every
With torn and tattered colors and with flowers bright and gay?
They are our Nation's heroes—her soldiers and her tars—
Some are maimed and wounded, and some wear noble scars.
When our country was aroused by the sounds of Civil War,
And the echoes of Fort Sumpter's guns were heard both near and far,
'Twas then the men you see to-day, who march with stately tread,
Went forth with those now numbered 'mongst the army of the dead,
To uphold the Nation's honor, to preserve the Union whole.
With a purpose firm and true as the needle to the pole.
But the conflict's long since over, and why march they to-day?
To honor those who've fallen and a debt of love to pay;
It matters little now whether the dead wore blue or gray—
Flowers are strewn on both alike on Decoration Day.
And thus may it continue while suns shall rise and set,
For we've long since forgotten the Gray, but can't so soon forget
Those who stood beside us in many a hard-fought field,
'Till at last to grim death's message they were compelled to yield.
So "with malice toward none, and with charity for all,"
Our mission's one of those whom God hath pleased to call;
The hardships we have suffered we can vividly recall—
The march, the camp, the battle—methinks I see them all!
But is there one regrets as they ponder on them well?
No! regrets are only cherished for comrades brave who fell—
Regrets for gallant leaders and our fallen "Boys in Blue,"
Who rallied 'round the Standard to the Union firm and true;
Regrets for all who wore the Blue, and pity for the Gray,
Is all that animates our hearts on Decoration Day.
Then honor our brave Veterans as they honor their dead;
"What have they done for us?" methinks I hear it said:
When duty called they answered "Aye," answered every one,
To protect our great inheritage bequeathed by Washington?
Our great and glorious Union they risked e'en life to save
Gave manhood unto chattels and freedom unto slaves.
Is honor then not due them for such noble work well done?
"Republics are ungrateful," but let not this be one;
And when the last great "Reveille" is sounded from the sky,
And we are called to "muster" by commands of the Most High,
May no command then be "missing," but all receive their pay
In the Crowns to be distributed on "That Decoration Day!"

N. B. We desire to call special attention to the SUPERIOR QUALITIES of this Paint. During the past three years over one thousand gallons of it have been used in this vicinity, giving in every instance the very best satisfaction.

It is well know that the best lead and oil, mixed in the usual way, will in a short time, lose its gloss & rub off or chalk. Rubber Paint is guaranteed not to crack, chalk, or peel.

We are aware of a great prejudice against mixing paints but we confidently recommend this, believing it to be the most beautiful, durable, and economical paint in the market.

Remember this Rubber Paint is composed of pure White Lead, Zinc, Linseed Oil, and India Rubber, with the best coloring pigments that can be obtained, ground in. A careful examination of buildings on which it has been used will convince the most sceptical of its merits. We refer to the following parties who have used our paint:

FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1883.

Harrison.

Memorial Day was observed in Harrison by planting flags and placing floral decorations at the graves of deceased soldiers in the various cemeteries. This service was performed under the auspices of Harry Rust Post G. A. R. of Norway, the officers of which furnished the ex-soldiers of Harrison with flags to carry out the objects of the occasion in a fitting manner. To that organization the thanks of all friends of our deceased comrades are due for this token of liberal regard. Capt. Granville Fernald had general supervision of the services in town, and had personal direction at the old F. B. church cemetery and Bolster's Mills. Able assistance was rendered in other cemeteries by comrades Howard M. Thompson, John E. Woodsum, and others. At the village a public meeting was held in the Cong. Church after decoration service, at which prayer was offered by Dea. A. P. Whitney, and appropriate addresses were made by Hon. C. A. Chaplin and Dea. Whitney. Six graves were decorated in the village cemetery. At old F. B. cemetery six graves were decorated with flags and floral offerings. Quite a number assembled to participate. Misses Isa Cummings and Nellie Cushman sang appropriate poetical selections. At Bolster's Mills the teacher, Miss Emma Proctor, and her pupils were found assembled at the school house, and marched in procession to the cemetery, where eight graves were decorated with flags and beautiful bouquets. At the entrance to the cemetery, a beautiful, large silken banner was floating, crowned by a splendid floral wreath. This was loaned by Miss E. Fernald and erected by her order. At the close of the ceremony, the company assembled in the space near the gate and Misses Geneva Dorman, Virgie Weston, Mabel Dorman and Gertie Haskell each read beautiful memorial poems, after which all joined in singing America with a melodeon accompaniment, played by Miss Virgie Weston.—News.

The following are the names of deceased soldiers whose graves were decorated in this town:

Harrison Village.—War of 1812, James Bailey Bela Dawes. 1861, Lieut. Enoch Deering, Hollis C. Ilsley, Morrill Hobbs, Roswell Libby.

Old F. B. Churchyard.—1776, Nicholas Bray. 1812, Edward Bray, Chas. Walker, jr., Leander Harmon, Spofford Ingalls. 1861, Edward Gilkey.

Bolster's Mills.—1776, Jumper, Capt. John Brackett. 1812, Enoch Brackett, John Small. 1861, James G. Warren, Wesley Haskell, Silas Stiles, Stephen Stiles.

Burnham Hill.—1861, Charles Bucknell, Washburn Bucknell.

Woodsum Family Cemetery.—1861, Silas Woodsum.

South Harrison.—1812, Col. Amos Thomes.

Near Senter School House.—William Carsley.

Two graves of Revolutionary soldiers and two or three of the War of 1812 were inadvertently omitted for want of reasonable notice and accurate information.

C. F. Ricker is having a pleasure boat, of Boston, 20 ft. long and 6 feet beam. The boiler and engine is from the shop of Wilkinson & Co., Boston. Mr. Ricker will adjust the engine after its arrival here. It is to go into Long Lake and is for select pleasure excursions over all the Sebago waters.

A new street is about to be laid out in the village over land purchased of Mrs. Mary Hamlin by Reuben Hobbs. This will open up a number of very fine building lots. Mr. Hobbs intends to improve one for building a house, and one or two other lots are engaged for building on the coming season it is reported.

Mr. William H. Briggs, of the late firm of Briggs Bros., Confectioners, Portland, has bought the farm known as the Dea. Walker place, for several years past the residence of Granville Fernald, and is repairing and repainting to some extent. Mr. B.s' family will remove from Portland the first of July and occupy their new home. Mr. Fernald's family will not remove from town.

The ceiling in the vestibule of Hon. Philander Tolman's mansion fell the other day and the room will have to be re-plastered. Some other rooms will also need repairing. Poor hair in the mortar is supposed to be the cause of the defective plastering. These rooms were handsomely frescoed by J. Mead & Son a few years ago.

Nearly 100 elm, maple and other ornamental trees were planted in the village this spring and are looking well.

A party of North Bridgton students excursioned on foot to Brunswick last week to attend "commencment," returning in the same manner. Among them was Fairfield Whitney, son of E. K. Whitney.

To Mrs. M. J. Ilsley and Miss Annie Ilsley, teachers of the village school, Miss Lucy Dorman of the Cummings district and Miss Emma Proctor, Bolster's Mills, with the scholars of each district, many thanks are due from the friends of deceased soldiers for the interest they each and all manifested, and for important services in preparing abundance of beautiful bouquets and wreaths for decoration services on Memorial Day.

NORTH NEWRY.

Mrs. Maria Sargent, an old lady 84 years old, fell down through (where there had been a chimney taken down) from the attic floor to the floor below, a distance of 18 feet, breaking one leg and badly bruised and injured her internally. Owing to her great age she is not expected to recover.

Grass never looked better for this season of the year. Crops of all kinds are looking finely with the prospect of a good harvest. MOSES.

ALBANY.

Miss Roxie Cummings goes this week to Old Orchard to spend a few weeks. She thinks of taking her sister Anna with her, who is quite out of health.

Mr. Woodbury, principal of the Eastern Normal School, and his family, are visiting friends in Albany.

Mr. George Clark, who works in Fairbanks' scales factory at St. Johnsbury, Vt., is at home for a little season of rest.

Mr. Austin Grover is in very poor health.

Matrimonial matters are quite lively.

Our roads are badly washed by the heavy showers this week.

Planting and sheep shearing are at a "stand still." H.

Greenwood.

Millard Emmons cut his foot quite badly last Saturday, while at work cutting fence stuff. He was nearly half a mile away from home and no one with him and he had a hard time to reach home. He corded his leg before leaving the woods. You could track him as well as you could a butchered hog. He fainted as soon as he got into the house. Fortunately for him a physician was passing at the time and called in and dressed the wound. It is now doing nicely.

We learn that James Crockett of Norway has put into E. O. K. Waterhouse's pasture in this town, a nice Dutch bull. Greenwood folks will do well to patronize him, as he is worth going a long way to see.

I see by your paper that Wm. C. Hobbs of Norway, had quite a gathering at his house, consisting of his Sabbath school class. I dare say they had a nice treat.

Mrs. Amelia Richardson, a lady 83 years old, is quite smart for one of her age. She walked from her home to the town farm and back one day last week, a distance of nearly 3 miles.

Frank Martin who has been at work for Eld. Benson at North Paris, is obliged to return home on account of ill health.

Eld. Benson is to preach here once a month this season.

Ella Bradbury of Norway, is teaching the school at the city. The scholars are well pleased and the Supervisor speaks very highly of her as a teacher and governor.

Little Bertha Emmons, the 6 years old daughter of Israel Emmons, is an uncommonly smart scholar for her age.

Dennis Herrick was badly hurt while plowing by the oxen getting frightened and running over him.

AVON.

South Waterford.

Mrs. J. C. Pike, accompanied by Mrs. Alvin Pike of Sweden, was starting with their team to visit her daughter at No. Bridgton, this morning (Tuesday) a little before 9 o'clock, when, as soon as they were fairly started in the road the horse began to run, evidently frightened at something, and as they were at the top of a long hill he soon became unmanageable and having run forty or fifty rods threw both ladies out into the ditch. The fall was witnessed by a near neighbor, Mr. Jonathan Howe, and the alarm given. Mrs. Howe and the hired man, Mr. York, were soon at the place of disaster to witness a sad plight. Both women were apparently dead, but with wonderful courage Mrs. H. obtained water from the ditch, filled by yesterday's shower, and washed the blood from Mrs. J. C. Pike's face and soon had her upon her feet. Presently Mr. Howe came with another team and conveyed them both back to their home, and at once went for Dr. Wilson of this town. Fortunately Dr. Bray of Bridgton came along and was called in and took charge and dressed the wounds, upon the head of Mrs. J. C. Pike sewing up a large skin gash, and found no bones were broken in either, but Mrs. Alvin Pike was found to be badly injured in the chest so as to be unable to lie down. Mrs. J. C. is a lady about 60 years of age, and quite heavy, while the other is considerably younger and lighter. They are among the best and most respected citizens of their respective towns. Great anxiety is felt on the part of all for them. The Dr. says that the elder lady's case will be very critical if she lives for the next 48 hours. We learn that Mr. Alvin Pike will remove his wife to her home to-day.

Cobb & Hapgood have sold their grist mill to Mr. Daniel Lebroke of this town. The consideration is not made known to the public as yet. Mr. L. will take possession soon.

NORTH RUMFORD.

The frequent showers and warm weather are helping the crops along wonderfully, and we see no reason why we should not have on abundant hay crop.

Chas. Kimball, senior, has raised his house one story, and when finished will be as pretty and pleasant as any house on the Point.

The mosquito is here among us, and he brought along his friend the beetle. The air is filled with them at night, and their flying against the windows sounds like hail.

The four horse stage coach from Bryant's Pond to Andover goes up every evening loaded with fishermen bound for the lakes.

The potato beetles have come and are at work on the early potatoes. Nothing better for them than Paris green.

The cuckoo is singing more rain.

We have noticed a number of tent caterpillars this year. We trust they are not planning to make another raid on us.

Help is scarce and wages high. Common farm help get from $20 to $25 per month.

G. S. Silver is quite ill with lung trouble.

Boys don't try and run your bicycle through the sand, because it won't go but you are liable too.

The farmers are planting a few Lima beans for Mr. Webb's canning factory. He pays $2 per bushel for the shelled beans and ¾ cents per can for sweet corn.

One of the school girls the other day found a clover root with several four, five and six leaf clover upon it.

Try the ADVERTISER three months, and if you like all the home and county news and other instructive and interesting reading, you won't stop it.

NORWAY LAKE.

A bay horse, harness and rubber coat was stolen from Benj. Tucker's stable on Tuesday night.

C. W. Partridge with a small force of help is doing some extra good jobs on the highway. He is a highway surveyor, Mr. Editor, of which it is no "unusual sight" to see him taking the hardest place among his men, and instead of "large drops of sweat standing on his brow," it is pouring out all over him.

James Smith has been shingling his shoe shop and stable at the Lake.

Now the great bull frogs put in their choruses.

Sweden.

A part of our schools are now in session, while others have been postponed on account of the prevalence of the measles. The school in district No. 1 is taught by Miss Luella Whitehouse, that in No. 2 by Miss Minnie French of Lewiston, and Miss Nellie Evans is engaged to teach in No. 3, Miss Nellie Morrison of Bridgton highlands in No. 4, a Miss Bemus of Lovell village in No. 5, Miss Mary E. Hilton of Bridgton in No. 6, and Miss Nelly M. Pike in the Centre district. Miss Julia M. Whitehouse is to teach in the Pike district in Fryeburg and Miss Annie Perry in the Fox district in Lovell.

Mr. Joseph Adams has sold his place at the Nevers Four Corners to Charles W. Bennett for $650, and bought the Flood farm on the North highlands in Bridgton, for $1150. Mr. Adams moved his goods and family to his new home last week.

Mr. Albion Nevers has sold his interest by heirship to his late father's home-farm, situated at the Nevers Four Corners, to his brother-in-law, Charles W. Bennett.

The powerful shower Thursday afternoon, the 7th inst. did considerable damage in R. O. Moulton's corn patch, carrying much of the finest soil and dressing into the brook and pasture.

Mrs. Charles B. Hamlin, we are happy in being able to state, is thought to be improving, and her friends have a hope that she may perfectly recover her health.

Mr. John Bennett is in a pitiful condition. He is in much pain at times, and can get no rest except what is forced by morphine while sitting in his chair.

Last Sunday evening the Sabbath School children of the Congregational Society gave their regular monthly concert. It was nicely arranged and finely executed by both pupils and teachers.

Herbert F. Hall returns to Kansas City a week from next Monday.

O. P. Cummings is in town this week.

The streets are receiving repairs.

There was a goodly attendance at the Methodist Quarterly meeting last Sunday.

The old school house has disappeared to about to be erected.

Prof. Everett and Mr. Ingalls returned from Andover Saturday with a goodly supply of brook trout and lakers. They report the fishing in that vicinity the best it has been for many years.

A. M. Gerry, T. F. Hathaway and D. S. Knapp are spending a few days at Little Concord pond.

HEBRON.

At the reunion of the teachers and students of Hebron Academy on June 29th, Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Hon. Eugene Hale, Hon. John D. Long and other distinguished alumni of the Institution are expected to be present. An original poem will be given by Rev. G. M. P. King, President of Wayland Seminary. The graduation exercises of the Senior class will commence at half-past ten in the forenoon. At two o'clock, p. m., a collation will be served in the Chapel. At three o'clock the Re-union exercises will occur, at which addresses will be made by distinguished alumni. At eight o'clock, p. m., a concert will be given by Chandler's Orchestra of Portland.

A match game of base ball was played here on Saturday the 9th inst. between the Hebron and Oxford clubs, which resulted in a victory for the Hebrons by a score of forty-four to eight. The Hebron club expect to play at Canton next Saturday.

BOLSTERS MILLS.

Freeman H. Pike and wife celebrated the eighth anniversary of their marriage by taking a trip to Boston and spending a few days.

Miss Lizzie M. Green, one of the oldest school teachers in this vicinity, has given up teaching and has engaged in less public duties. Last week she left the home of her childhood, and has gone to Boston, where she expects to reside at present, as the wife of a young man who is engaged as a clerk in a store in that city.

Miss Rosie Chute, a teacher in the Gorham Normal School, came home last Friday to visit her father, who is still quite feeble, and returned to Gorham on Monday.

Mrs. Bennett, of Edes' Falls, is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. F. H. Pike, in this place.

Mrs. James E. Green is visiting her relatives in Bridgton. Mr. Green is at work in Harriman's lumber mill at Bridgton Center, where he is engaged for a year.

Mr. Cyrus Scribner, who has been confined to his house during the winter is now able to go out, but can perform no labor yet.

The Bolster's Mills Dramatic Club gave an entertainment at Stuart's Hall, the 26th ult, to a large, respectable and delighted audience, on which occasion they presented the patriotic Revolutionary Drama, "One Hundred Years Ago," and a very laughable farce, "The Mischievous Nigger." It will be repeated at South Waterford, Saturday evening, June 16th.

Mrs. Daniel Scribner, who has been sick several years, died on Monday, June 11th, aged 75 years. She has been troubled with a cancerous affection for many years, and has been a great sufferer.

Mrs. Kilgore, widow of the late Liberty Kilgore of Harrison, has come to this place to spend the summer. She is boarding with Mrs. James E. Greene.

Porter.

Last week we had some quite hot weather. Tuesday the 5th inst., the thermometer went up to 90 in the shade. The hay crop was never more promising, and vegetation in general is in a fine growing condition.

We see by the ADVERTISER of last week that Bro. Sanborn and wife have gone to N. H. We hope their trip will be a pleasant one in all respects, and that the Editor will return to his editorial chair fresh and vigorous, brimful of news. We, too, are breathing the pure, bracing mountain air of the old "Granite State," which is truly refreshing. During our absence of a few years there has been many changes, yet the good people have not forgotten their true hospitality.

We were very sorry to find our friend, W. F. Parsons, of Conway, in very poor health. He has a delightful situation and is surrounded by many home comforts. Poor health seems to be his only drawback. We heartily wish some good angel with healing on its wing, would hover around him and that he might be fully restored to his usual strength.

Arriving at Conway Center we were very kindly entertained by Morton Bros. and their families. We find them selling goods of the best quality at very low prices. Business in general in this part of the country is thriving and prosperous. We are informed there are 17 stores in the town of Conway, each having their share of the trade.

We noticed Judge Eastman passing along the street, and although he is 85 years of age, his step is firm, and he is as erect as a young man of 20 years.

We spent a day with Mrs. Dorcas F. Morton, widow of the late William Morton. She is 81 years old, but is in good health and retains her faculties to a remarkable degree, doing her work as promptly as a young housekeeper.

A few words to Bro. Drake then we will close. Sorry you could not go fishing, but earnestly hope you will be able to hoe your "taters." Keep the fighting man in the back shop, and give him plenty of employment—idleness leads to vice.

We have found the "intelligent fishermen you advertised for last week. F. W. Morton, C. F. Morton and Sam'l Hatch of Conway, also Mr. A. Morton of Boston, went on a fishing excursion a few days ago to Albany, N. H., a distance of 15 miles. They were gone two days, fished in Swift river, and caught five hundred of the "speckled beauties," the largest of them weighing one-half pound each, and not one of them measuring less than five inches by a carpenter's rule. We will vouch for these facts, as not one of these honorable gentlemen would tell a "crooked" fish story.

OXFORD.

W. F. Hutchinson has seventeen men to work on Maguire's Island. He has been put back in operations on his hotel by the lack of material.

Ed. Hall, of Raymond Center, had some doubts whether a circular saw in Bartlett's Mills of Greenville, was in motion or not. He put his hand on to it carelessly and sawed off three of his fingers and part of his hand.

The recent heavy showers have raised Thompson Pond to overflowing.

The Oxford base ball club experience the Hebrons.

The mill of the Mousam Co. at Hackett's Mills was raised last Wednesday.

A. Ward, jr., has invested some of his loose change in a new hat. By the Fourth he will take his pants out of his boot legs.

J. K. Chase took a lot of photos for a part of the Hebron graduating class last week. The week before that he finished a lot for some of the graduates of the Nichols Latin School, Lewiston.

Miss Alice Webber is teaching at Welchville. She has taught several satisfactory schools in this vicinity.

G. H. Parrott has just put in a lot of fine groceries which he offers at very favorable prices.

The boys who came back from Rangeley say that the heavy rains have raised the lakes so as to interfere seriously with the fishing.

On top of Allen hill is one of the finest places for a summer hotel in the State, a mineral spring of the purest water, and scenery which cannot be surpassed.

Saturday, some of the "boys" set Benj. Flood's clothes, which were covered with oil and paint, a fire. Eye witnesses say Mr. Flood got up and skinned out of those burning clothes with a suddenness which has no parallel in history.

We are sorry to see that a part of the trees that were set out in the school house yard are dead.

Leander Wardwell has certainly some of the finest livery teams in this village. LITTLE DAISY.

One of the locomotives of the G. T. R. was very tastily draped last week in remembrance of engineer Kavanough and fireman Fowler, killed in the Stratford Hollow accident.

A box containing 12 one quart bottles of Medford rum, was seized at the express office by Deputy Sheriff Chadborn last Saturday.

H. K. Pratt of East Oxford, is putting an extension of 24 feet on to his barn, besides making other improvements.

The farmers have got the greater part of their planting done and crops are growing very fast, especially those planted on high ground. The potato bug has already taken his stand, gazing with longing eyes for the first appearance of the potato top, and that bird of great musical genius, namely, the crow has already commenced his depredations in the corn field.

MASON.

Rain and accidents are still the order of the day. A few days ago, Sumner Grover of West Bethel, while attempting to shoot a hawk accidentally discharged his gun which was pointed towards his toe. The result was the toe had to be taken off. Last Monday evening, R. K. Morrell while at work leeching ashes, was badly scalded about the head and neck.

Last Sabbath being Childrens' Day, appropriate exercises were held in the M. E. Church. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Budden, preached a very interesting sermon to the children in the morning, and in the afternoon there were exercises by the children, consisting of recitations and singing. The house was well decorated with plants and flowers furnished by the friends of the school.

OTISFIELD.

The school on Scribner Hill commenced Monday, June 4th.

We hear that Miss J. Arvesta Andrews, who has been in Boston a number of weeks past for her health is improving and will soon be able to return home. Her many friends will be glad to welcome her back.

We were glad to welcome Miss Ella Lovewell back to her old school on the Gore again this spring, but very sorry that she was obliged to leave so soon on account of sickness in her family. The school commenced again Monday, June 4th, Miss Mertie Starbird of Norway, teacher, and we doubt not that it will be a successful term.

The Winship Bros. of East Otisfield, are enterprising farmers. They have quite a large shop in connection with their farm, where they have all the carriage repairing, etc., that they can attend to when not engaged on their farm.

Naples.

Henry Lamb met with a severe accident, while at work in his stave mill last Saturday. A stave caught on the back side of the saw and was thrown with great violence, striking him endwise in the forehead. He was stunned by the blow, but soon recovered consciousness. Physicians were called and the wound dressed. It was found on examination that besides a large scalp wound the outer crust of the skull was broken and a small piece gone. Though severe it is hoped the wound is not dangerous.

Locke's Mills.

At an adjourned meeting of the Parish Society held at the school house June 11th, the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions to erect a meeting house at this village, reported subscriptions amounting to $400.00. The society chose E. L. Tebbets, E. E. Rand and I. C. Jordan as a building committee, with instructions to proceed to erect said building. Contributions from any one from the widow's mite upward will be thankfully received.

Bessie Noble picked the first ripe strawberry last week.

Currier's Hall was filled to its utmost seating capacity last Sunday, to hear Rev. G. B. Hannaford preach.

MR. EDITOR.—"T." the correspondent for the Lewiston Journal noticing the error in item locating Harry Rust Post G. A. R. at South Paris, sent a correction to that paper but it has not been inserted. While "T." thinks that such an organization as Harry Rust Post G. A. R. is an honor to any village yet he would not appropriate that honor to his own village.

So. Paris, June 13th, 1883.

Decoration Day.

What mean these men by marching every
With torn and tattered colors and with flowers bright and gay?
They are our Nation's heroes—her soldiers and her tars—
Some are maimed and wounded, and some wear noble scars.
When our country was aroused by the sounds of Civil War
And the echoes of Fort Sumpter's guns were heard both near and far,
'Twas then the men you see to-day, who march with stately tread,
Went forth with those now numbered 'mongst the army of the dead,
To uphold the Nation's honor, to preserve the Union whole,
With a purpose firm and true as the needle to the pole.
But the conflict's long since over, and why march they to-day?
To honor those who've fallen and a debt of love to pay;
It matters little now whether the dead wore blue or gray—
Flowers are strewn on both alike on Decoration Day.
And thus may it continue while suns shall rise and set,
For we've long since forgotten the Gray, but can't so soon forget
Those who stood beside us in many a hard-fought field,
'Till at last to grim death's message they were compelled to yield.
So "with malice toward none, and with charity for all,"
Our mission's one of those whom God hath pleased to call;
The hardships we have suffered we can vividly recall—
The march, the camp, the battle—methinks I see them all!
But is there one regrets as they ponder on them well?
No! regrets are only cherished for comrades brave who fell—
Regrets for gallant leaders and our fallen "Boys in Blue,"
Who rallied 'round the Standard to the Union firm and true;
Regrets for all who wore the Blue, and pity for the Gray,
Is all that animates our hearts on Decoration Day.
Then honor our brave Veterans as they honor their dead;
"What have they done for us?" methinks I hear it said!
When duty called they answered "Aye," answered every one,
To protect our great inheritage bequeathed by Washington?
Our great and glorious Union they risked o'en life to save
Gave manhood unto chattels and freedom unto slaves.
Is honor then not due them for such noble work well done?
"Republics are ungrateful," but let not this be one;
And when the last great "Reveille" is sounded from the sky,
And we are called to "muster" by commands of the Most High,
May no command then be "missing," but all receive their pay
In the Crowns to be distributed on "That Decoration Day!"

N. B. We desire to call special attention to the SUPERIOR QUALITIES of this Paint. During the past three years over one thousand gallons of it have been used in this vicinity, giving in every instance the very best satisfaction.
It is well know that the best lead and oil, mixed in the usual way, will in a short time, lose its gloss & rub off or chalk. Rubber Paint is guaranteed not to crack, chalk, or peel.
We are aware of a great prejudice against mixing paints but we confidently recommend this, believing it to be the most beautiful, durable, and economical paint in the market.
Remember this Rubber Paint is composed of pure White Lead, Zinc, Linseed Oil, and India Rubber, with the best coloring pigments that can be obtained, ground in. A careful examination of buildings on which it has been used will convince the most sceptical of its merits. We refer to the following parties who have used our paint:

The number of poor horses see our streets Decoration Day, was cause of frequent remark. It pays to raise good horses. Probably some years to come there will b great demand for first-class horses.

Albert Richardson passed thro this village on Saturday with two noble looking Jersey cows as we h over seen in this vicinity. One of cows has a calf by her side whic quite promising. He purchased t of Sumner Wardwell of East Otis for about $100.

We heard some unearthly outc from the vicinity of the Elm Ho driveway the other day. Seizing hat we prepared to make a dash for scene of the disturbance, when we a number of persons looking up window of Pierce's in which hun parrot in a cage. Pretty noisy b that.

A correspondent of the Oxford D ocrat from Greenwood says that "se scamps from Norway" went up th one night and "imported" two of turkeys and twenty-four eggs made a dive for another and failing catch the bird took a china egg she sitting on. Our "scamps" ought smart for such business as that, really we thought they went to Gre wood for quite a different purpose.

While so many windows on streets are at the present time ador with such beautiful display of pla and flowers, it is difficult to de which is the most beautiful. Mr. A. E. Briggs and wife of Parkman, Me., are in town, the guests of C. L. Hathaway.

About the best place in town to get a good view of the surrounding country is on Frost Hill.

The highway surveyor is abroad upon the county roads. We notice among two crews at work that the surveyor was doing as much work as any of them.

An entire new covering is being put on to the bridge at the outlet of the pond.

Gen. Beal is having a new fence built from the hotel to his residence on Cottage St. It is to be wire fence, but we have not learned as it is to be barbed.

Now is the time to test the capacity of the cows for making butter. Send in the items and let us see who has the best cow.

Average weekly pay roll in the Norway shoe factory for the month of May was $1,275.53. For the first week in June $1,829.85.

David Gurney has one of the best looking gardens that we have seen this season. He understands how to grow early vegetables.

The town reports give 390 as the number of scholars in district No. 7 for the year 1875, and 370 for 1882. There are some over 400 this year.

The members of the Ladies Circle are requested to meet at Concert Hall next Wednesday evening at 7:30 to talk about having a Lawn Party.

All nature has taken on its most beautiful garb, and it seems impossible to suggest any improvement just now in this locality at least, no chance at all to grumble.

J. W. Parsons is fast closing out his stock as advertised last week. He is making low figures, and it may be an object to call early, as he is bound to close out this month.

The Hub.

We would inquire of the Road and Fish Commissioners, whether or no the pond on Beal street, near Horne's Branch R. R., could not be advantageously stocked with hornpouts?

J. F. Allen has secured the services of the veteran boot and shoe maker, Mr. C. K. Smith of South Paris, who will enter upon the duties of his office next Monday. Mr. S. is one of the best workmen in the State.

During the absence of the family of one of our most worthy farmers at the Center last Saturday, their dwelling was entered by tramps, or some person who had little respect for law and order, leaving the premises in a condition somewhat distasteful and mortifying to the good woman who presides over the premises. China ware, pots, kettles, silver ware, &c., were overhauled, and so arranged, that when the returning party entered the premises they could account for the disaster in no other way than the bursting of a cyclone inside the house. Detectives are at work, and it is hoped that the guilty will be brought to judgment.

"Newt." says, an enterprise is now being considered by the business men of the country, to connect Songo lake with Pennesseewassee pond by a canal. The object of this scheme, he says, is to get direct communication with Portland by water. Our informer is one of the rare specimens of humanity that can't tell a lie!

S. L. Crockett advertises Paris Green and Hellebore this week. He gave us a box of the former article to feed out to our numerous herd of potato bugs. We cheerfully recommend it as genuine article. What we want in addition, is something to feed the twitch grass roots on, and we must find it soon, or we may be compelled to spend the summer at Augusta.

Everybody's going to see the handsomest woman in the world, and 25 performing elephants, 1,000 wild beasts, Colossal Circus in three rings, and 4-Paw's Roman Hippodrome. The great Forepaugh show exhibits at Portland, June 25; Lewiston, June 26; Bath, June 27; Augusta, June 28; Waterville, June 29; Bangor, June 30; Saco, July 2. In addition to a grandly great circus in three great rings, and a monster menagerie of 1,000 wild beasts, all transported by four great railway trains, there is to be a great, grand, free Procession on the day Forepaugh exhibits there. Every town in this county will be represented in this huge, highway, holiday parade. In addition to this, the great pageant of "Cleopatra" and "Lalla Rookh" will be presented in the show parade. This latter spectacle is described as being the most gorgeous ever seen upon the streets of an American city. The loveliest lady in the land has been secured to personify the beautiful Eastern Princess, Lalla Rookh, whom poets describe as "more beautiful than any of those heroines whose names and loves embellish the songs of Persia and Hindostan; more perfect than the divinist images of the House of Azor." In this gorgeous, glittering, Oriental pageant, Lalla Rookh is seen reclining in her sumptuous howdah, borne aloft upon the back of a ponderous and kingly elephant, the largest on this continent, whose embroidered velvet trappings touch the ground; a fair young female slave sits fanning the Princess through the rose-colored veils, with feathers of argus-pheasant's wings, and the lovely troupe of Tartarian and Cashmerean maids of honor ride upon each side of the Princess upon small Arabian horses. Rajahs and Mogul Lords follow, accompanied by Cavaliers in costly armor, mounted upon

"Steeds with their housings of rich silver spun,
Their chains and poitrels glittering in the sun;
And Camels tufted o'er with Yemen's shells,
Shaking in every breeze their light-toned bells."

In keeping with the author of Lalla Rookh's description of this grand, glittering, lavish and luxuriant spectacle, are seen the Guards of the great Kedar Khan, with their silver battle-axes and maces of gold, followed by the Great Nazir, or Chamberlain of the Harem, and the retinue of the Court of Delhi, mounted upon elephants, camels and Arabian horses, decorated in Oriental trappings, and bearing aloft the royal standards—the entire scene recalling to the beholder the glories and the grandeur of the distant Indies: the whole forming the most magnificent, picturesque and realistic Oriental spectacle ever presented in the New World, requiring the expenditure of a hundred thousand dollars in its preparation, eclipsing all displays of pageantry ever produced by any exhibition, and in itself worth miles of travel to behold. Remember, this superb spectacle is presented daily, between the hours of 9 and 10 a. m., and is a great, grand, gorgeous, free public festival for all to look at and admire.

A WISE MAN'S FORTUNE.

You can't surmise
My great surprise
The first time that I advertised.

Right afternoon
They formed in line
Customers and old friends of mine.

All eager to buy,
For the reason why,
That I was wise
To advertise.

I do suppose
We shall dispose
Of all the goods in store.
In this event I am bound to rent
My neighbor's house next door.

You may take the hint,
If you want a mint
Of money, be, as I was, wise,
And go to the press and advertise.

PERVERSITY OF PARTNERS.

BY WILTON BURTON.

"How you comin' on deze days, Marse Jimmie?"

"Pretty well, Uncle Toby."

"Looks like you got a powerful sight o' stuff in dis yer sto'."

"Well, yes; we have a large stock of goods—more than we shall ever sell, I'm afraid."

The speakers were a merchant and his former slave. The latter had walked to the back part of the store, and, with the air of one that feels himself a privileged character, had taken a seat unbidden in the best chair by the fire.

The appearance of the store justified the comment. In one corner, by the fireplace, was an island of bacon surrounded by a miniature sea of brine; in the other, a group of syrup-casks, one of which rested horizontally on two billets of wood, and shed its contents, drop by drop, through a leaky faucet into a tin can. Between the fireplace and the ends of the two counters, that ran lengthwise of the room, was a tangled maze of flour-barrels, sugar hogsheads, and cracker-boxes, threaded by a narrow footpath that led to the door. The counters were piled high with "domestics," gayly-colored calico and ready-made clothing, so that there was scarcely room for the two broken show-cases, with their display of cigars, neckties, pocket cutlery, and pinchbeck jewelry. The shelves were filled to their utmost capacity, and up above the cornice the spiders had woven a net of cobwebs over a long array of dusty crockery and woodenware. Truly, there was a "powerful sight o' stuff" in the store.

For some time Uncle Toby sat silently smoking a clay pipe. Presently the fire made him drowsy, and he felt to nodding. This pastime might have continued indefinitely had not his pipe fallen from his lips to the hearth. The crash aroused him, and he resumed the conversation:

"Seem like to me I ain't never been see no better fire to roas' a tater in dan what dis yer fire is, ef I des had de tater."

"There are some in that barrel—help yourself."

"Thanky, sah."

And Uncle Toby buried a potato in the ashes and put two or three others in his pockets for his wife, "Marthy Ann."

"Yes, Mr. Humphery owns a half interest."

The negro grunted disapprovingly.

"Mr. Rumplesf mighty clever man. He gin me a quarter for hol'in' his horse onct. I ain't a-sayin' nothin' agin him, an' I'm hopes you an' him'll git along harmonikle; but ef ever you year tell o' me a-goin' cahoot 'long of a yuther nigger agin, you can make a hen nes' out'n my ole hat."

"Did you ever have a partner, Uncle Toby?"

"Yas, sah. I had a partner onct—a crappin' pardner—an' me an' him couldn't 'gree no ways we could fix it."

"That was bad."

"Hit was bad, but it couldn't be hope, bekase pardners is naicherly de meanes' folks in this newited worl'. But I ain't a 'sputin' but what Mr. Rumpless mighty clever man,"

"I suppose you think Mr. Humphrey may be an exception to the rule."

"To be sho'."

"I can't vouch for that; but what did you and your partner disagree about."

"Well, sah, ef you wants to know all about dat, take a seat and set down in dat cheer, bekase dat tater'll have plenty time to roas' 'fore I git done tellin' you 'bout Sandy Brooks."

"Was that your partner's name?"

"Dem was his entitlements, an' he was a biggity nigger, too. He use more big works dan what deze yere Methodis' circus-riders use. He think hissef some punkins bekase he could read an' write. He 'low he knowed it all.

"I declar' to gracious, Marse Jimmie, dem cheese smells so good I don't b'lieve I kin tell you 'bout Sandy 'thought I has a slishe of 'em to tuss' on de cen' o' dis stick.

"Thanky, sah. Deze cheese is good, sho'; but cheese looks sorter lonesome 'cep'n you has crackers to go 'long wid 'em. Thanky, sah. I always knowed you was de free-handest one o' old moster's boys. Ax Marthy Ann ef I didn't tole her so.

"Well, dat Sandy nigger he w'ar sto' close, an' he smoke seegyars ever' time he could pick up a ole stump on de groun'.

"In dem days Mr. Waggintire uso to keep a sto' in dis yer same town."

"Yes, I remember, McIntyre and Wagner."

"Yes, sah; dem's um, only dey fell out, an' Mr. Waggintire he tuck an' tuck the whole sto' to hissef.

"Well Mr. Waggintire he had a piece o' lan', an' he rent it to me an' Sandy for the fo'th o' what we could make on it. Sandy had two big stroppin' gals, named Ritter and Suse, which he 'low dey was es good a fiel' han's es Mr. Anybody. He put hissef an' dem in, an' I put in mysef. I was to git de fo'th an' Sandy was to have three fo'ths, bakase he wuk three han's. Mr. Waggintire 'vance for us.

"'Twarn't long fore I seed Sandy was gwine to git de egwantage o' me. Ever' day he sen' to de sto' after sump'n ner'er. Marthy Ann 'low we better buy ever'thing we wants, or Sandy 'll git it all. Sandy keep his 'count in a little ole book; but ever' time I buy a dollar worth I make a tolerable long mark on de chimbly wid a fire coal. Ef it wan't dat much I make a sorter short' mark, 'cordin' to de 'mount. I know my 'count was de kerecksē.

"No sooner we start to pitch de crap de fuss begin. I want to plant de long slipe by de branch in cotton, an' Sandy want to plant co'n dar; I want to plant de chaneyberry fiel' in co'n an' taters an' goobers, an' Sandy swar by the pint o' his knife hit got to be plant in cotton. Ge an' him 'spute an' 'spute about dat tell Mr. Waggintire had to come an' 'cide 'twix' us. An' he 'cide jes' like Sandy want it, too. Deze yer pardners dey kin always git somebody to 'cide in favor o' dere side.

"Ever' Sat'dy Sandy seem like he jes' 'bleeged to take holiday."

"Didn't you take holiday every Saturday, too?"

"Yas, sah; but don't you see, ever' time Sandy stop three han's stop; when I stop hit was jes' me one.

"When we was layin' by de co'n de sun was powerful hot. I was plowin', an' Sandy an' his two gals was follerin' me wid de hoes. Ever' few minutes Sandy gwine to de branch atter a drink o' water. Den his two gals dey stop an' listen at de peckerwood tappin' on de dead tree tell he come back.

"After a while I says, says I, 'Sandy, you must be got de tarryfy fever f'om de way you drinkin' de branch dry,'

"He 'low, 'You ain't got no larnin', nigger. Don't you know water's a good Sude-er-ritter for to make you sweat an' keep off de sunstroke?'

"I says, says I, 'Ef you talkin' 'bout Suse an' Ritter, dey look mighty jack-an'-dipper, leanin' on dey hoehan'ls an' de crab grass a growin'.'

"'Well, sah, dat nigger like to bust hissef laffin'. I was a great a mine to make a rock zoon by his head, jes' to let him year how it soun'. But I hilt mysef in dat time.

"'Atter dat Sandy kick up a rumpus 'bout sump'n nigh ever' day. Dey warn't no livin' in peace wid him. His wife she had to have a han' in de fuss. She 'low my ole 'possum dog suck her aigs. Marthy Ann tuck it up, an' dey had it. When womens gets mix up in a 'spute hits bound to git wuss an' wuss. My ole 'oman 'low I oughter whip Sandy, but I ain't payin' no 'tention to what she sayin', bekase I knows jes' how womens is. Dey always anxious for dey husbands to fight a ner'er man what dey 'spises, but dey don't never tink 'bout ter'er man fightin' back.

"When we went to gether de co'n Sandy says, says he, 'Look yere, I wants to have ever'thing fa'r an' squar now, an' I wants you to understand all 'bout it.'

"'I 'low, 'Dat's all right,'

"'Well,' says 'e, 'you know Mr. Waggintire gits one fo'th of ever'thing.'

"'I says, says I, 'I knows dat,' says I, 'an' I gits a ner'er fo'th, an' you gits de yuther three fo'ths.'

"Sandy sorter smile to hissef.

"'Well,' says 'e, 'de way for us to do when we hauls up de co'n is to put three loads in one pile for me and you, an' one load in a ner'er pile for Mr. Waggintire.'

"'I says, says I, 'What de use o' mixin' mine an' yone? Dat jes' be makin' double trouble for nothin'. Let me 'vide dis co'n, an' I'll 'vide it right.'

"'How you gwine 'vide it?' he says, says 'e.

"'I says, says I, 'Mr. Waggintire gits a fo'th an' I gits a ner'er fo'th. Ever' time we puts a load on his pile we mus' put a load on my pile. Den all de balance 'll be yone.'

"He says, 'Dat won't do,' says 'e, 'bekase dat er way you'll git more 'n yo' share. You got to pay part de rent same es me.'

"'I says, says I, 'I sees what you up to. You wants to take out Mr. Waggintire's part, an' den you ain't a gwine to give me but de third. But I se gwine to have my rights ef somebody nose have to be mashed for it.'

"'I 'low, 'I spogo' [illegible] gwine to be [illegible] you'll fin' er turnish do nose.'

"We kep a 'sputin' an' 'sputin'. One word brung on a ner'er, an' after a while Marthy Ann jine in, an' de fus' thing you know me an' Sandy hitched."

"You fought, did you?"

"Yas, sah, we fit—but I speck it's time for me to be knockin' long home. Dis yer tater look like hit's done. I wish you mighty well, Marse Jimmie, an' I'm hopes you an' Mr. Rumpless 'll git along harmonikle."

"But wait. You haven't told me about the fight. Who got the best of it?"

"Well, sah, Sandy he tuck an' crope up on me an' knocked me down with a' ax hel', an' den he kick me in de short ribs. Dat was toler'ble hard to take, as you know yo'sef, Marse Jimmie, but I ain't sayin' nothin' tell Marthy Ann run up like she gwine ter t'ar up all creation, an' Sandy call her a old heifer. Dat sorter 'xcite my riserbles."

"What did you do then?"

"I says, says I, 'Go 'way f'om yer, nigger, bekase you mought make me mad, an' ef I gets mad somebody 'll git hurt.'

"When you argy wid Mr. Rumpless an' try to show him how de bes' way to manidge, he don't knock you down wid a ax' hel', do he?"

"No, but he's as stubborn as a mule, and keeps on buying more goods in spite of my protest."

"Well, dat always de way with pardners. Dey de contraries' folks I ever see."

"How did you came out dividing the crop?"

"I come out de leetle en' o' de ho'n. No sooner I git up off'n de groun' an' bresh my cloze I went to see lawyer King, bekase ever'body gin him de name o' bein' a hones' man, what don't know no different 'twixt cullud genpleman an' a white man. I tole him all 'bout it, same like I done tole you. All de whiles I was talkin' he setten' dar scratchin' his year wid his pen handle. Atter I git thu he 'low I couldn't git no more than salt an' batter out'n dat case. I 'low I was atter co'n an' cotton. Salt an batter wouldn't satisfy me.

"When I got back home dar stand Mr. Waggintire. Sandy sent atter him whilst I was gone. He took an' 'vide de crap out jes' like Sandy want him to, an' what 's more 'n dat he tuck all my share, bekase, he say, I done trade it all out in de sto'.

"Whenever you git a ner'er man to come an' settle 'twixt you an' yo' pardner de pardner sho' to get it all. Pardners is mos' too 'ceivin' for my use."

"You are about right," said the white man. "At any rate, if I live to see New Year's this store shall be all mine or all Humphrey's, and I don't care which. I am tired of partners."

"Now you heerd me," exclaimed the negro. "You's a talkin' now, an' you ain't a was'in no bref. Fur as I'm concern, pardners kin go 'long Liza Jane.

"Marse Jimmie, you ain't got nar ole pa'r shoes 'roun' yer settin' in de corner gapin' for bones, is you? 'Kase ef dey's too little for me dey'll 'bout fit Marthy Ann."

"Yes, I believe there's a pair in the back room you can have."

As Toby passed out with the shoes he said:

"I wish you mighty well, Marse Jimmie, an' I'm hopes you an' Mr. Rumpless 'll git——"

But he saw that nobody was giving any heed to what he was saying, for Mr. Humphrey had come in, and the two partners were engaged in a heated discussion of some matter of business upon which it was evident they could not agree.

A SAD STORY.

A Little Story of Every-Day Life in a Great City.

[From the New York World.]

No one could read the affecting story of the attempt of a suffering woman to drown herself and her two children in the East River without feeling that there must be something wrong in a system of society which renders such a terrible drama possible. That it was not a serious tragedy is due to the promptness and presence of mind of the men who rescued the mother and the babes from death.

For days this poor woman had been wandering homeless about the streets of the city. For days she had been without food, and she saw her little baby girl and her infant actually starving to death—the one dragging by her side, the other in her arms. Why was there no relief for her? No place for her to go where she could get food and shelter without being red-taped and examined and questioned until death cut the examination short?

She might have sought the Department of Charities and Correction. Yes. But that department could not have given her a loaf of bread or a dollar of money for her immediate relief. She could have obtained coal, but she and her children could not eat coal. She might have got medicine, but her sickness was one no medicine could cure.

She might have been carted off to the ferry-boat and carried over to the Island, but there she would have been separated from her children under the rules. She prefered to remain united with them in death.

Wise laws—merciful rules! Wise laws, which do not allow the Commissioners of Charities to dispense a dollar for bread or food for the starving, outside poor. Merciful rules, which tear parents from children and husbands from wives, when they seek the merciful shelter of a penal almshouse to escape starvation.

At the moment this wretched, heart-broken mother dragged her weary steps toward the river along Fourteenth street elegant carriages were rolling on Fifth avenue, with ladies lounging easily inside resplendent in silks, velvets, diamonds, pink saucer and pearl powder. While the baby girl tottered feebly by her side and the infant wailed in her arms, both weak with hunger, many a fat, impudent-looking poodle blinked and winked in the windows of the carriages, silk-ribboned, carefully combed and dyspeptic from over-feeding.

The cost of one of these equipages—the price even of one of these poodles—would have given bread, clothing, life to the three homeless wanderers. The food eaten by the dog would have made luxurious meals for them.

This is no fancy sketch. It is a terrible picture of real life in a city which boasts arrogantly of its "magnificent private charities" and its "noble public institutions." The poor woman who, with her little ones, sought the dark river as a haven of rest would probably have had a less exalted opinion of the magnificence and nobleness of our charities, private and public, than is entertained by the philanthropic managers who eat up 75 per cent. of the contributions to the one and the well-paid officials who "run" the other.

Summer Dresses.

reins us, are the novelty for watering place toilettes. This is the sheerest white mull, as silky looking as guaze or as India muslin, and on this transparent surface are flowers of most natural hue and design, printed there by some fine process that makes them look as if painted by hand. The great rose patterns are liked by young ladies, while their mothers wear the scabieuse flower, and purple fleur de lis, or bunches of pansies or lilacs. These thin tissues are made up over white silk, a separate white under-waist answering with several dresses, but the silk skirt has the material placed directly on in each breadth, and sewed up with it in its seams. Flounces of scantily gathered white lace are the trimmings, and the skirt when finished is of scarcely perceptible weight. Seven flounces of the lace cross the front and sides, but only two pass around the skirt. The short full drapery crosses in front, has a lace frill on the edge, and its longer back breadths are looped to represent a great sash bow with ends. Some of the waists are basques shirred in surplice shape, and others are baby waists full and belted, with the neck cut square. The waist lining of silk is also high in the back, but is cut out in a point or square to match the outside waist. Rose or olive satin ribbons are made into loops for these dresses, matching either the flower or its foilage in color. Dark velvet or pansy colored velvet ribbons are used when the flowers are of these dark colors.

Of Interest to Depositors.

J. W. Smith, a depositor in the Brooklyn Savings Bank, recently recovered judgment for $1,050 against that institution, most of which amount had been paid to his brother, who had presented plaintiff's bank book. Appeal was taken by defendant to the General Term of the Brooklyn City Court. That tribunal reversed the decision of the Court below and granted the bank a new trial. The General Term holds that all sums withdrawn from a bank and properly entered in the depositor's book must be considered valid returns from the bank to the depositor, though care and discretion must be exercised by the authorities.

In commenting on the above the New York Herald says: "This is rather a startling decision. If it is a correct interpretation of the law, then the law countenances exceedingly loose methods on the part of these institutions in dealing with the money intrusted to their keeping. The Court qualified its decision by saying that the bank must exercise care and discretion. But this qualification amounts to little, if any person by merely presenting a depositor's book can draw money which does not belong to him, and the defrauded depositor is left without recourse against the bank."

WHAT THE BOYS WANT.—In a hearing before a legislative committee in a New England State, a few weeks ago, it was testified that while formerly it was the desire of boys to enter on a mechanical apprenticeship, the contrary was now the fact, one witness saying that the boys all aimed to get positions in insurance offices, and another expressing the belief that the future supply of mechanics' apprentices must come from the State reformatory institutions. Another gentleman of acute observation said that "the growing tendency of the times is not to have boys learn a trade. The old system of apprenticeship is no longer in vogue. The trades seem to be despised."

MEN resemble the gods in nothing so much as in doing good to their fellow creatures.

FARM AND GARDEN.

HOW TO DESTROY CURRANT WORMS.

Several methods have been set forth in the newspapers for the destruction of the currant pest. One authority has said that hellebore, put into water, must be used with a syringe so as to wet the under sides of the leaves; another has said it must be sprinkled on dry when the leaves are wet; and still another has said it must be steeped in water and then applied. As regards the first method named, says a New England correspondent, if there were fifty bushes it would be no small task to go stooping around with what the boys call a squirt-gun applying the liquid to the under side of the leaves. No less would be the task of applying the dry powder with a pepper-box, and as for steeping the powder, it is wholly unnecessary. The successful and easiest method is as follows: If your watering pot holds a pailful, fill it with cold water, and then put in two tablespoonfuls of hellebore, stir it a minute or two, and when the bushes are dry sprinkle them. This has been my unfailing method for ten years. Two years ago I had seventy bushes, besides six Houghton seedling gooseberry bushes, and before I was aware of it the worms had commenced their work on almost every bush. Having the powdered hellebore on hand, in twenty minutes I sprinkled every bush, and the next morning but few worms were alive, and those that were living had the palsy so badly that all fell from the bushes before night. If more should chance to come after this process, give them another dose. A neighbor states to me that he gets the hellebore in its crude state from the swamp, and steeps and uses it effectually. Of course, in this state, it must be steeped in order to apply it, but as few can obtain it from the swamps the best method is to use the powder as I have stated. Ten or fifteen cents will purchase enough to clear a hundred bushels of the vermin. Let the bushes be sprinkled all over and not merely where the worms are seen, as there may be some secluded from view. This mode of treatment was made known to me by a friend years ago and doubtless many practice it, while there are others who, judging from the periodicals I read, suppose that the syringe or pepper-box must be used and the powder steeped, and as this is such a task the worms are left to destroy the bushes and others are deterred from attempting to raise what to many is a very choice fruit.

THE SPRING CHICKENS.

The young farmer of the Boston Journal, says:—I like to have two or three setting hens come off at the same time with the chickens, especially after the weather is warm. Then I usually give the chickens all to one hen; or if there are three good clutches I divide them among two hens. I try to select the quietest and tamest fowl to bring up the young ones.

Sometimes hens will refuse to adopt chickens that they have not hatched out, but if they are put under her wings after dark at night and left there until morning, they are generally received as one of the family.

Occasionally they will be driven away when daylight comes, but not often. I have had hens that would kill all chickens that did not belong to them, if the chickens came within their reach while fastened in the coop. One hen always tried to kill all black chickens, even if hatched under her. They would be open when only just out of the shell. Another hen, or the same one, killed a fine brood of turkeys that she had hatched before I noticed that the eggs were hatching.

This is one reason why care should be taken to select the right hen to put the chicks with, and a wild, ranging fowl will usually kill about half her brood by running them through the fields, and the few she does raise will be as wild as she is, even though of a tamer breed.

Perhaps the best way, after all, is to take the chickens away from the hens entirely, and bring them up by hand. Give them an old comfortable, or a bit of sheepskin so hung that they can hover under that, and they seem to be just as happy and thrifty as if they were not orphans.

"Throw Physic to the Dogs, I'll None of it."

We do not feel like blaming Macbeth for this expression of disgust. Even nowadays most of the cathartics are great repulsive pills, enough to "turn one's stomach." Had Macbeth ever taken Dr. Pierce's "Purgative Pellets" he would not have uttered those words of contempt. By druggists.

A WOMAN, says Richter, is the most inconsistent compound of obstinacy and self-sacrifice that I am acquainted with.

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

A New and Most Important Theory on One of the Most Vital Questions of the Day.

If any one had informed Queen Elizabeth in her palmiest days that she could have been seated in her palace in London and conversed with Sir Walter Raleigh in his North Carolina home; receiving a reply from him within an hour's time, she would have declared it to be a miracle. And yet, had they lived in the present day, this apparent miracle would most readily have been witnessed and not seem at all strange or unnatural. The truth is, new principles are coming into existence, and the operation of many laws unknown in the past is being fully understood in the present. In no way does this fact come more forcibly to the mind than in the care and treatment of the human body. Millions of people have died in past ages from some insignificant or easily controlled cause which is thoroughly understood now and readily handled. Consumption during the entire past has been considered an incurable disease. And yet it is demonstrated that it has been and can be cured, even after it has had a long run. Dr. Felix Oswald has just contributed a notable article on this subject to the Popular Science Monthly. He regards consumption as pulmonary scrofula. The impurities of the blood produce a constant irritation in the lungs, thus destroying their delicate tissues and causing death. His theory shows conclusively that consumption is a blood disease. It has its origin primarily in a deranged condition of the kidneys or liver, the only two organs of the body, aside from the lungs, that purify the blood. When the kidneys or liver are diseased they are in a sore or lacerated state, which communicates poison to every ounces of blood that passes through them. This poisonous blood circulates through the system and comes to the lungs, where the poison is deposited, causing decomposition in the finely formed cells of the lungs. Any diseased part of the body has contaminating power, and yet the blood, which is the life of the system, is brought into direct contact with these poisoned organs, thus carrying contagion to all parts of the body. Bishop Jesse T. Peck, D. D., LL.D., whose death has been so recently regretted, is reported to have died of pneumonia, which medical authorities affirm indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. It is well known, moreover, that for several years he had been the victim of severe kidney trouble, and the pneumonia which finally terminated his life was only the last result of the previous blood poisoning. The deadly matter which is left in the lungs by the impure blood clogs up and finally chokes the patient. When this is accomplished rapidly it is called pneumonia or quick consumption; when slowly, consumption, but in any event it is the result of impure blood, caused by diseased kidneys and liver.

These are facts of science, and vouched for by all the leading physicians of the day. They show the desirability—nay, the necessity, of keeping these most important organs in perfect condition, not only to insure health, but also to escape death. It has been fully shown, to the satisfaction of nearly every unprejudiced mind, that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is the only known remedy that can cure and keep in health the great blood-purifying organs of the body. It acts directly upon these members, healing all ulcers which may have formed in them, and placing them in a condition to purify and not poison the blood. This is no idle statement nor false theory. Mr. W. C. Beach, foreman of the Buffalo (N.Y.) Rubber Type Foundry, was given up to die by both physicians and friends. For four years he had a terrible cough, accompanied by night sweats, chills, and all the well known symptoms. He spent a season South and found no relief. He says: "I finally concluded to try Warner's Safe Cure, and in three months I gained twenty pounds, recovered my lost energy and my health was fully restored." The list could be prolonged indefinitely, but enough has been said to prove to every sufferer from pulmonic troubles that there is no reason to be discouraged in the least, and that health can be restored.

THE prudent man does not put his hand into the fire.—Hieron.

HOMŒOPATHY is making rapid strides in this country—a fact which is due to a great extent to the practice, in homœopathic households, of keeping books and medicine chests for ready reference in emergencies, as well as the more trifling maladies generally met with. The attending success is communicated to friends and neighbors, who, from similar causes, become converts to the system of homœopathy. The greatest variety of these chests of medicines are put up by Messrs. Boericke and Tafel. Biliousness and Bilious Patients.

Pertaining to Bile, Bilious Symptoms, Bilious Temperaments. THE REMEDY.

The Bilious is a disorder of the human system. A technical definition of the term is this: "Pertaining to the bile; disordered in respect to the bile; as, a bilious patient; dependant on an excess of bile; as, bilious temperament; bilious symptoms.

The word bile, when employed in the sense in which it is to be understood in this article signifies, according to the Dictionaries, "A yellow, greenish, bitter, viscid, nauseous fluid secreted by the liver." "Any derangement of the bile at once manifests itself in great bodily discomfort, in loss of appetite, and in despondency," recently remarked an author of a valuable treatise upon this subject.

The same writer further adds: "Some of the following symptoms are usually prominent: Pain in the right side, which is very sensitive to pressure. The pain will sometimes appear to be located under the shoulder blade. There is also irregular appetite, flatulence, a sense of fullness in the region of the stomach, and, sooner or later, the skin and whites of the eyes become yellow, the stools clay colored and the urine yellow, depositing a copious sediment." The balance of the too familiar train of ills needs no further mention here. The bilious is, as will be seen, is an affliction of great magnitude, and of varied forms of direct and indirect appearance. The disease is no respector of persons or localities. Its deadly and implacable enemy is found in

KIDNEY-WORT.

It acts on the liver and kidneys at the same time, and by its mild but efficient cathartic effects moves the bowels freely. The morbid poisons that have been the cause of all this disease and suffering will be thrown off; new life will be infused into every organ, and nature thus aided will soon restore the patient to health.

Physicians of repute and standing, men who are honored for their probity, and respected and trusted for their scientific attainments, are using Kidney-Wort in their practice regularly. No stronger evidence of the worth of the remedy would seem to be necessary. Such indorsements are few and far between. We had almost said that they were without precedent in the history of a proprietary remedy. Be that as it may, however, the fact remains established that Kidney-Wort is a matchless remedy, and one that needs only to be tested to demonstrate its rare merit as a healer of most of the common maladies of the human family.
